Days late are counted to October 13, 2026, the date of the list. Reports for fiscal years before 2025 carry no daily fee.

Fee estimate so far: US$6,570 (estimate, before any reduction), rising about US$20 a day while the reports stay unfiled.

How we worked it out

Illinois law (65 ILCS 5/8-8-4(d)) lets the Comptroller charge a fee for each late report: US$5 a day for days 1 to 15 past due, US$10 a day for days 16 to 30, US$15 a day for days 31 to 45 and US$20 a day from day 46. The Comptroller may reduce these amounts. The Comptroller's fines FAQ says fees apply to fiscal year 2025 reports and later, are charged per report, and stop when a compliant report is received. Older years carry no fee here, but under the same law the Comptroller can order an audit of a unit whose reports stay unfiled and bill the unit for it.

What catching up takes

For each late year: the bank statements, the treasurer's reports or ledger, the budget or appropriation ordinance, any loan or bond statements, and the last annual financial report you filed. Scans and phone photos are fine. We fill in the Comptroller's annual financial report for each year from those records and send it back with step-by-step filing notes. Your officer reviews it, signs and files it in Comptroller Connect.

Audits must be done by a licensed CPA. We do not do audits; we can put your records in order for your auditor.

After you file, the Comptroller sends instructions for asking for a reduction of fees. That request is yours to make.

Price: catch-up of up to three late years US$2,000 to 4,500, fixed and quoted in writing before we start. Invoice after delivery, net 30.
